FREAK STORM IN VALLEY

Former Local Girl Killed in Donora Accident

Either 'Falls or Jumps' to Death from Car on Saturday

An argument over smoking cigarettes ended in the death last night of a 19-year-old Donora woman who formerly lived in Monessen.

Mrs. Bertha Louise Stoneman Corbett, of 83 Highland Terrace, died in Monongahela Memorial Hospital at 6:20 p. m. yesterday of head injuries suffered in a fall from a car the day before.

Mrs. Corbett

Washington County Deputy Coroner Nicholas Campana, of Monongahela, said Mrs. Corbett, who is estranged from her husband, "fell or jumped" from a car operated by Donald H. Garland, 21, of 30 McKean Ave., Donora, in the downtown section of Donora about 11:30 Saturday night.

Garland told police that he and Mrs. Corbett, who formerly lived at 210 Rebecca St., Monessen, had been at the Garland home watching television Saturday night. He said it was about 11:15 p. m. when he and Mrs. Corbett started driving toward her home.

Garland stated that as they were driving along McKean Ave. near Chestnut St. and an argument started over his opposition to her smoking cigarettes.

Gave no Warning

Without warning, he said, Mrs. Corbett opened the door and "either fell or jumped" from the machine, her head striking the street.

She was rushed to the hospital where she died about 15 hours later of a fractured skull.

Garland, police said, is being held on a minimum of $500 bond pending a coroner's inquest.

A graduate of Donora High School, Mrs. Corbett attended Monessen public schools before her family moved to Donora in 1954.

She is survived by her parents, Samuel and Edythe Stoneman, and three brothers, William H., of Monongahela; Samuel E., also of Donora, and Airman 2-C James, of Maryland.

Friends are being received at the James Rabe Funeral Home in Donora. Services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday from the funeral home and at 2 p. m. at the St. John Episcopal Church in Donora.

Burial will be in Jefferson Memorial Park.

Write-in Hearing Thursday

A hearing will be held in Westmoreland County court Thursday morning at 10 o'clock to decide the winner of the Republican nomination for mayor in Monessen.

The appeal for the hearing was made by John R. Stieska, who opposed Mayor Hugo J. Parente for the nomination, after county commissioners last Thursday rejected the petition of Stieska to accumulate write-in votes cast for him on voting machines in the May 21 primary under varied versions of his name.

The hearing will be before Judge Richard D. Laird. Stieska will be represented by Atty. Wayne Donahue, of New Kensington, while David H. Weiss and Bernard Shire, of Monessen, will be Parente's attorneys.

If the court upholds the commissioners' ruling, Parente will be declared the Republican as well as the Democratic nominee for reelection in the November general election.

Name Mixup

Parente had 70 votes cast for him under his full name and Stieska had 58.

If the courts allow all the votes under all versions of Parente's and Stieska's names to be counted, Stieska would be the Republican victor.

In an unofficial tabulation of these votes, Stieska was credited with 169 to 140 for Parente.

Last Thursday, County Solicitor P. K. Jones, of New Kensington, told the court the county election board's refusal was based on his advice that write-in votes can only be accumulated in districts using paper ballots rather than voting machines.

He said courts in several other counties already have held that in the case of voting machines, the votes can only be tabulated for correct names and spellings.

It could not be learned today if John Harhut, who won the Democratic nomination for City Council, had petitioned the court to recanvass Republican write-in votes, which, if accumulated, would give him one of the two GOP nominations.

Neither could it be learned if Dr. G. L. Trilli appealed for a court decision. Trilli, who lost the Democratic nomination as City Treasurer to incumbent John P. Spielman, claims he would have the Republican nomination over Spielman if his votes were accumulated.

The confused situation arose in Monessen when no Republicans sought City offices and nearly all Democratic candidates sought Republican write-in votes.

STORM SWEEPS WEBSTER — This is part of the damage done in Webster yesterday by a freak storm that swept down on the little community when hurricane-force winds of 90 miles-an-hour or more were reported. This is the Vogel Apartments with a part of the roof missing and the chimney gone.

Webster Hit by 90 Mile Winds; City Bypassed

A freakish storm, with hurricane-force winds, whirled crazily through the district yesterday, ripping off roofs, uprooting trees and knocking down utility poles.

Hardest hit in the area were Webster and sections of Rostraver Twp.

The storm system slashed a crazy path, completely bypassing Monessen, Charleroi and Monongahela.

Wind, rain and hail lashed violently at Webster, while a section a nearby Donora escaped with only a minor breeze.

The American Steel and Wire Co. weather equipment located atop Webster hill clocked gusts of wind at more than 90 miles per hour.

A spokesman at the Donora Zinc Works weather station said the winds "may have been much stronger by the time they reached the valley."

Much Damage

There were no injuries reported, but considerable damage resulted in Webster. The roof of the Vogel Apartments was ripped off. Bricks from the chimney smashed through windows in nearby houses.

A huge tree on the John Dolfi property was uprooted and hurled across the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad tracks.

Trees all over town were knocked down. Township work crews were busy cleaning up the debris to keep traffic moving. Several roofs were badly damaged by the storm, and many small buildings were toppled over.

According to the Zinc Works weather station, the storm moved into the area at 5 p. m. with moderate winds. Then at 5:20, a violent five minute hail storm preceded the big wind gusts. In ten more minutes, it was all over.

Rainfall during a ten minute period was measured at .17 inches. The temperature dipped from 91 degrees at 5 o'clock to 71 at 5:30.

Lines Knocked Down

Both West Penn and Bell Telephone Co. officials reported damage in Rostraver Twp.

High winds knocked down nine telephone lines serving 30 subscribers. They were still being replaced today.

A West Penn spokesman said that winds toppled power lines in Rostraver Twp., Allenport and Perryopolis. Workmen repaired most of the damage last night.

The storm cooled the entire area after the mercury had climbed to 100 degrees at 4 p. m., according to the weather station at U. S. Lock No. 4.

In Charleroi, it rained early in the afternoon but the violent winds bypassed the community. Monongahela also escaped the furious storm.

The storm apparently hopped all over the western Pennsylvania district.

Bathers in Panic

Sections of Pittsburgh were flooded and four feet of mud was washed onto Bricelyn St.

At McKeesport, lightning struck the bathhouse at the Renziehausen Park swimming pool, knocking out the lighting system and creating panic among the bathers. Michelene Awalek, 14, Pittsburgh, was injured slightly when she was jammed against a wall in the crush.

Numerous power failures occurred. The Point Breeze substation of Duquesne Light Co. was struck, cutting off electricity to a wide area in the East End section of the city.

Heavy Storms Cause Damage In St. Louis

By UNITED PRESS

The eastern half of the nation sweltered in the year's first major heat wave today in the wake of killer storms that caused flood disasters at St. Louis, Mo., and other points in the Midwest.

At least 20 persons were killed in weekend storms that dumped record rains on the St. Louis area. Flash floods drove some 6,000 persons from their homes in the area, but many of them began returning Sunday as the raging waters receded.

Swimming accidents also claimed a heavy toll of lives as millions of persons thronged to parks and beaches Sunday in an effort to escape the 90 - degree plus temperatures.

Eleven persons drowned in New England and one person died in a boating accident. Six persons drowned in Michigan, four each in Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana and two in New Jersey.

At Scranton, Pa., three golfers were killed Sunday and three others were injured when a bolt of lightning struck a tree where they had taken shelter during a rainstorm. A physician at the Scranton Country Club said all three men died instantly.

Red Cross workers and special crews moved into the St. Louis area to help in the mammoth cleanup operation. Nineteen persons died in the St. Louis area floods, and one man was killed when his car rammed into a flooded gully in Nebraska.

The worst single flood accident killed seven members of one family Saturday when their car was swept away by a wall of water near Beaufort, Mo.

A total of 8.72 inches of rain swamped St. Louis in little more than 13 hours during a record downpour Friday night and Saturday. Belleville, Ill., southeast of St. Louis, was flooded with a 13.75-inch rainfall. Amounts up to 10 inches and more were common throughout the area.

George Remains In the Hospital

ATLANTA (UP) — Former Sen. Walter F. George remained in serious condition today as he began the second week of a hospital stay for a checkup and treatment of a heart ailment.

George, 79-year-old presidential ambassador to NATO, spent a fairly comfortable night, Emory University Hospital said in its early medical report, but said his condition remained serious.

Two American Women Beaten Near New Delhi

NEW DELHI, India (UP)—Two American women aid workers were recovering in a hospital here today from a beating by Indian villagers who mistook them for child kidnapers.

The victims, Alice McKinney, 41, of Hammond, Ind., and Dorothy Barbee, 42, of Ripley, Tenn., were reported in improved condition in a New Delhi hospital to which they were flown after Sunday's attack in a southern village.

The incident occurred when the women, employees of the U. S. Technical Cooperation Mission, got lost during a motor trip from Jundgadh to Ahmedabad, in southern India. They stopped at a village to ask directions from a group of children.

They were attacked by a mob of about 150 outraged villagers who suspected them of trying to kidnap the children.

Haiti Quiet After Violent Weekend

At Least 50 Dead In Clashes

PORT-AU-PRINCE (UP)—Haiti was precariously quiet early today under the muzzles of the army tommyguns that killed at least 50 persons and wounded 200 in a savage outbreak of week-end violence.

The number of political prisoners clapped into Port-au-Prince's jails during the clash was estimated between 500 and 1,000.

Brig. Gen. Antonio Kebreau, who ousted provisional President Daniel Fignole Friday, appeared to be intent on stamping out opposition to his military junta regime quickly and at any cost. Fignole fled into exile.

Most of the casualties of the weekend outbreak were supporters of Fignole, but a radio report said the prisoners included at least one leading partisan of Sen. Louis Dejoie, another candidate for president in the deferred elections.

Roadblocks Thrown Up

Army roadblocks cut off travel and communication between Port-au-Prince and the provinces, making it impossible to obtain first-hand reports on conditions outside the capital. No large-scale violence was reported.

Unconfirmed reports that Dominican troops are massing along the border that bisects this tropical island in preparation for an invasion of Haiti were denied by Dominican Ambassador Porfirio Basora.

The junta officially acknowledged only that 12 persons were killed and 20 arrested in the week-end disorders, but the actual casualty figures were known to be much higher.

The trouble started at midnight Saturday, a few hours after word of Fignole's safe arrival in New York was received here. Roving bands of Fignolists, defying curfew regulations, surged out of the slums to set fire to buildings and heave huge rocks into the streets.

No Americans Hurt

At least one tourist hotel was stoned by the mobs, but none of the handful of Americans visiting Port-au-Prince was injured.

The army was quick to retaliate. Before dawn, tommygun squads marched into the districts of La Saline, Belair and Portail St. Josef, raking flimsy shacks with indiscriminate gunfire.

The tempo of violence increased at dawn, even as church bells rang to summon the Roman Catholic faithful to early Mass. Trucks carrying prisoners by the dozen to Port-au-Prince's jails rumbled through the streets all morning.

By Sunday noon, the city was nervously quiet.

THEIR SON FREED BY RED CHINA — Mr. and Mrs. John Hoole, of Glendale, Calif., hold a picture of their son, Rev. John A. Hoole, 42, after receiving news that he had been released by the Chinese Communists. The Rev. Hoole, a Jesuit missionary, was arrested on June 15, 1953, on charges of espionage. The Reds let him go on the completion of his prison sentence. Rev. Hoole hoped to leave Shanghai in two weeks.

Assembly Roadblocks May Halt Adjournment

HARRISBURG (UP)—The give-and-take in Senate-House conference committees on "Must" legislation will determine just when the gavel will bang final adjournment of the Legislature this week.

Republican leaders have fixed Wednesday for the wrapup, but a number of potential roadblocks must be overcome, particularly on appropriations to run the state government in the next two years.

The big remaining hurdle is the $1,111,043,000 General Appropriations Bill, where the Democratic minority is seeking restoration of 18 million dollars in cuts imposed on Gov. George M. Leader's budget. If they replace that figure, the governor will still find himself short about 70 million dollars of the funds he requested.

Although the big money bill is in a Republican-dominated conference committee, the Democrats are using their hold over the fate of 93 million dollars in non-preferred appropriations for state-aided institutions as a bargaining point. Those bills require a two-thirds vote, which GOP senators are unable to muster along party lines.

The conference committee met Sunday night on the General Appropriations Bill without reaching any agreement.

Over the weekend the governor made a last-minute appeal for funds to carry the bulk of his legislative program, and warned against the possibility of an "adjournment stampede" that would scuttle it.

He urged more money for programs for mental health, handicapped children, industrial development, flood control, and slum clearance.

Asks "Sound Judgment"

"Either we reach our decisions with prudence and common sense, or we lend ourselves to an adjournment stampede in which 'sound judgment is subordinated to impulse and whim,' he said. "Place the needs of people above the commands of party, place prudence above partisanship, stand fast against the adjournment stampede and reach your decisions with the calm, objective reason essential to good and humane government."

But on the Republican side, legislative leaders of both chambers said the Assembly now in its waning days has chalked up a record of accomplishment as solid as the GOP stand against imposition of any new taxes.

House Majority Leader Albert W. Johnson (R-McKean) contended the Legislature has worked "while the governor of Pennsylvania has rattled his sword." Johnson said the budget which the Legislature will present gives the governor 250 million dollars more than was spent by the Leader administration during its first two years.

Senate Majority Leader Rowland B. Mahany (R-Crawford) said the GOP kept its word to Pennsylvanians "by rejecting all demands and pressures for more unnecessary spending and additional taxes."

Mahany contended the governor will say the 1957 Legislature was a "do-nothing" session "for whatever political propaganda purposes it will serve in his campaign next year for the U.S. Senate."

shot automatic as he moved along.

"He chased back anyone who came at him," Chuck Curchella said. "His father and two other men started at the boy but he pointed the gun at them and started running towards them firing wildly as he ran."

Curchella said the men fled into the Sportsman's Club and barricaded themselves behind a locked door. The boy came back into the street and took cover in back of a car.

Curchella said he and Chuck Tatana decided to try a capture. While Curchella approached around one end of the vehicle, Tatana moved to the boy from the other side. At a sign, Tatana showed himself and Curchella said he leaped on the boy's back.

But Joey squeezed free, Curchella said, and pointed his gun at Tatana.

"It was aimed right at my stomach," Tatana said. "He pulled the trigger, but there was only a click. He was out of ammunition."

The men held Joey until four state troopers arrived to take him into custody.

No Talks Are Being Planned In Erie Strike

ERIE, Pa. (UP) — No further negotiations were scheduled today in the four-day strike of 1,700 members of the Paper Workers Union against the local plant of Hammermill Paper Co.

Federal Mediator Grover Stainbrook, Saegerstown, was standing by but withheld intervention. The workers walked out last Thursday midnight when negotiations for a new agreement to replace a contract which expired June 1 bogged down.

Union and management negotiators were in agreement on a 10-cent across-the-board wage increase, but the company rejected the union's proposals on fringe benefits such as vacations, holiday pay, arbitration of incentive grievances and special job rate adjustments.

Railway Express Rate Increase Granted by ICC

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized today an 11 per cent rate increase on less-than-carload Railway Express shipments on Eastern railroads.

Exempt were fresh fish and seafood, flowers, and water cress.

The increase becomes effective upon 15 days' notice and is to be applied to rates in effect Dec. 26, 1956.

The commission said it found that present express rates "penalize Eastern carriers and unduly reward carriers in other areas." Purpose of the rate boost, it said, is to "reduce that portion of the Eastern railroads' deficit which is attributable to the handling of express traffic."

In granting some exemptions, the commission said these commodities are in direct competition in Eastern markets with Southern producers. If the increase was applied to these products, it said, Eastern producers might be forced to abandon markets in which they presently compete.

Railway Express had asked for a 15 per cent boost. It sought no increases for milk, cream, newspapers, or human remains.

The National Retail Dry Goods Association, one of the agency's largest patrons, had opposed the increase. It pointed out that use of express service by retail stores would further decline if the rate hike was approved.

The commission said it recognized that an increase in express rates "probably will result in some loss of traffic" to truckers and freight forwarders which offer lower rates.

Right to Beard Is Claimed by Palace Guard

LONDON (UP) — The Scotland Yard disciplinary board today ordered a Buckingham Palace police guard to resign from the force because he refused to shave off an "untidy" beard.

Police Constable Stewart Dean, still defiantly sporting the beard, gave immediate notice of appeal to Sir Nott-Bower, metropolitan police commissioner.

Pending action on the appeal, Dean will remain suspended from his duty of guarding Buckingham Palace, the London home of Queen Elizabeth and her family.

Dean protested that guard duty at the massive stone palace and its rambling private park was so "boring" that he decided to brighten his life with a beard.

The suspension was announced after Dean appeared before the disciplinary board, still unshaven.

Nuclear Test Is Planned Tomorrow

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission today hoped that weather conditions would improve sufficiently to set off the much-postponed fourth nuclear blast of the summer test series Tuesday at 7:45 a. m. e.d.t.

The AEC was forced to call off the detonation scheduled today because of strong surface winds at the Yucca Flat test site, 75 miles northwest of here. It was the sixth time the blast was postponed another 24 hours.

No End in Sight For 'Pike Trial

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission conspiracy trial enters its third week today with no end in sight.

Deputy Attorney General Vincent G. Panetti said the prosecution, which has presented seven witnesses so far, "hasn't even scratched the surface yet."

Panetti said the Commonwealth will bring in "at least 40 more witnesses" and commented "at the rate we're going this is a six months trial."

Presiding Judge Homer L. Kreider warned attorneys for both sides at the close of the session Friday that he is "very seriously considering Saturday sessions and alternate evening sessions" beginning next week.

This tentative move was protested by attorneys on the defense, but Panetti said he "would be happy" to [illegible] and evening and weekend sessions.

The trial charges the commission was defrauded of millions of dollars through conspiracy with the Mann-Mine Research and Development Corp., Reading, for filling abandoned mines under the Northeastern Extension.

Principal defendants are Thomas J. Evans, Coaldale, former commission chairman; suspended commissioner James F. Torrance, Export, both Republicans, and Mann-Mine officers, Charles W. Stickler Jr., president, and Clayton A. Landsidle, vice president and general manager.

Others are Paul J. McNeill, former turnpike finance officer; John D. Paul, former turnpike assistant chief engineer; Theodore S. Paul, former turnpike legal counsel, and E. J. Donnelley and G. J. Hudert, of the J.E. Greiner Co., Baltiore, former turnpike consulting engineers.

Plumbers Get Wage Boost

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Plumbers union members, who went on strike against 192 member firms of the Plumbing Contractors Assn. June 3, were back at work in Allegheny County today as the result of a 35-cent an hour wage boost.

The walkout had halted plumbing work on millions of dollars worth of projects, including the Allegheny County Sanitary Authority's giant sewage disposal system; four buildings at the University of Pittsburgh; a Scott Twp. hospital, and expansion work at St. Francis and Childrens Hospitals.

The wage increase brings the plumbers' base rate to $3.77½ an hour.

Westmoreland Hearings On Changes in Traffic

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Highways Department today announced it will hold two public hearings in Westmoreland County June 26 in connection with proposed improvements to Traffic Routes 56 and 180.

Department Secretary Joseph J. Lawler said the Route 56 hearing will be held in the New Kensington council chamber starting at 10:30 a.m. The Route 180 hearing was scheduled for the Greensburg city council chamber at 3 p.m.

Lawler said the purpose of the hearing was to determine the economic effect of the projects upon the communities.

The Route 56 project includes 3.4 miles, with approximately all but one mile to be a four-lane highway, from New Kensington southeastward to Lower Burrell and Allegheny [illegible] township line. The one mile of two-lane highway would be graded for future construction of two additional lanes.

The project also includes five structures: a 165-foot, three-span bridge over the main line pavement, serving a ramp; two 26-foot reinforced concrete arches over Chartiers Run and two I-beam bridges one 28 and the other 44 feet, also over Chartiers Run.

Traffic Route 180 work would include some 3.4 miles of two-lane reinforced concrete highway in Penn and Hempfield Twps. and [illegible]. The project also would require three reinforced concrete bridges, two reinforced concrete I-beam bridges, two pedestrian overpasses and one pedestrian [illegible].

Japanese Justice Is Called 'Joke' By U.S. Lawyer

TOKYO (UP) — Raymond N. Bushell, first American lawyer ever admitted to the Japan Bar Assn., believes that U. S. Army specialist William S. Girard "cannot possibly get a fair trial in a Japanese court."

Bushell, who has had a highly successful law practice in Tokyo for the past eight years, Sunday called Japanese justice "a joke" and said "they're back in the 19th Century when Charles Dickens castigated the English judicial system for their inhuman methods."

Girard, 21, of Ottawa, Ill., is accused of killing a Japanese woman on the Camp Weir firing range while she was picking up scrap metal. Girard was on guard duty at the time.

Follow The Leader

Bushell said he had not been "legally briefed" on the Girard case but as a "practical matter" it is basic in Japanese law that if the prosecuting attorney tells the court the defendant is guilty then the Japanese judge is convinced he's guilty.

"They don't even comprehend the reasoning of American law which, as a matter of public policy, would suffer to see 10 guilty persons go free rather than to risk the conviction of one innocent man," he said.

Bushell said he has "amazed Japanese lawyers by telling them that no American would freely admit his guilt to a charge unless he was, in fact, guilty."

"But Japanese lawyers continually advise their clients to plead guilty, regardless of guilt or innocence," he said. "The idea is that if a man pleads guilty, tells a 'sob sister story' to the Japanese judge, he'll probably get a suspended sentence."

Not Necessarily Light

Bushell said it was not necessarily true Girard would receive a light sentence. "Unless you want to consider 20 years a light sentence."

A group of American lawyers, headed by Earl J. Carroll of New York, is fighting to keep Girard under U.S. military jurisdiction. They have filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in Washington District Court seeking his return to the United States.

The attorneys contend that a constitutional issue is at stake and that Girard would be deprived of his constitutional rights as an American if he were handed over to a Japanese court.

Israel Accuses Egypt of Planning Sub Warfare

By UNITED PRESS

Israeli officials accused Egypt Monday of planning submarine warfare against Israeli ships bound for the Gulf of Aqaba.

A Jerusalem dispatch said the Russians had donated three submarines to the Egyptian navy and predicted they would operate against Israeli and "other" shipping in the Red Sea approaches to the Gulf of Aqaba.

Egypt's relations with the Arab world also worsened. An Amman dispatch said the Jordan government Sunday night ordered its embassy in Cairo closed today.

The step was short of a formal diplomatic break but emphasized the critical nature of relations between the two former allies and virtually marked an end to the Arab solidarity proclaimed last spring.

Jordan's decision was announced after a four-hour cabinet meeting attended by King Hussein — the first he has attended since the split developed.

In Damascus the Saudi Arabian Embassy denied a newspaper report of a split between King Saud and his brother, Crown Prince Faisal, Saudi Arabia's premier and foreign minister.

The Saudi Embassy statement described the report as "baseless" and said Faisal went to the United States for medical treatment.

The leftwing report coincided with a growing coolness between King Saud and both Egypt and Syria which followed bitter Egyptian and Syrian attacks on King Hussein and reports this spring of assassination plots against Saud and Hussein. Saud and Hussein since have become firm allies, opposed to Syro-Egyptian "neutralism."

Scientist Under Subpena Takes His Own Life

PACIFIC GROVE, Calif. (UP)—A brilliant scientist under subpena to appear before a House un-American activities sub committee took his own life early Sunday rather than testify.

Deputy Coroner Christopher Hill Jr. said after performing an autopsy that the scientist, William K. Sherwood, 41, died from taking poison.

Sherwood was found dying in the Hopkins Marine Laboratory by his wife, Barbara, just after midnight. He succumbed an hour later at Monterey Hospital.

Sherwood, a Stanford University research scientist, was scheduled to appear before the House subcommittee in San Francisco Tuesday. The subcommittee has been investigating Communist "intellectual infiltration."

Tax Writers to Give Retired Couples Break

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congressional tax writers have secretly voted to reduce a special tax advantage available to retired couples living in the eight community property states, it was learned today.

The special benefit has been under attack from Florida lawmakers on grounds that it allows many retired couples in California to pay lower federal income taxes than they would have to pay if they lived in Florida.

The difference — in rare instances — could amount to as much as $240 a year.

California is a community property state; Florida isn't. Other community property states are Louisiana, Arizona, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas and Washington.

The House Ways & Means Committee agreed last week to reduce the special tax benefit.

Awaiting Final Approval

Official announcement of the action was withheld pending final committee approval of the bill later this month.

The discrimination in taxes levied on retired couples on the basis of residence occurred when Congress in 1954 granted them a credit, or savings, in income taxes on retirement income.

Retirement income was defined to include stock dividends, interest on savings, income from rented property, pensions and social security payments. The last already was exempt from income tax.

But in the eight community property states a retired taxpayer can attribute half of his retirement income to his wife, thereby enabling the couple to claim a combined tax saving of up to $480 a year.

Bars Loophole

In restricting the benefit, the committee voted to bar taxpayers in the community property states from attributing to their spouses any part of an individually-earned pension or annuity.

Actually, retired couples in the other 40 states also can claim up to $480 in tax credits on retirement income, provided the property producing the income is jointly owned.

There is another requirement, however. The wife must have had earned income of her own in excess of $600 a year in at least 10 years of her life. In community property states both spouses automatically meet that requirement if either has earned $1,200 a year in at least 10 years.

Brunette Beauty Chosen Laurel Festival Queen

WELLSBORO, Pa. (UP) — A blue-eyed brunette beauty from Sayre, Pa., Jean Sandra Kohler, is the 1957 state Laurel Festival Queen.

Gov. George M. Leader crowned the pretty 17-year-old high school senior at ceremonies here Saturday night.

Barbara Ruth Green, competing as Miss Jenkintown, was awarded second place. Each girl was presented a four year college scholarship to the college of their choice.

Miss Kohler who is five feet, eight and one-half inches tall, and weighs 125 pounds, said she would attend Pennsylvania State University and major in music education. Miss Green said she too would attend Penn State, but study fashion merchandising.

The runnerup was only to receive a trophy and some merchandise and the Jenkintown girl was surprised when Leader announced he would provide the second four year scholarship.

Other finalists, in addition to Miss Kohler and Miss Green, included Miss Upper Darby, Jane Powell; Miss Kittanning, Verna Barker, and Miss Wilkinsburg, Patricia Gayle Sims.

Some 35,000 persons were on hand to witness the judging.

New Missiles Race Keeping U. S. Busy; Want to Beat Reds

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Armed Forces have put nine different guided missiles in the hands of combat units and are working to develop at least 18 more.

The robot weapons now ready for action are of comparatively short range.

The highest priority now is on efforts to beat Russia in the race to perfect missiles in both the 3,000-to-5,500 - mile "intercontinental" and the 1,500-mile "intermediate" range.

In this, the services are engaged in intense competition among themselves.

Defense Department officials concede that inter-service competition caused duplication of effort. But they say some duplication is needed to make sure the United States gets the best missiles possible.

Each of the missiles now in the hands of combat units is designed to perform a different task or to cope with problems peculiar to the service involved. Here they are:

Commanded From Ground

Army Nike-Ajax —Anti-aircraft guided missile guarding at least 13 major cities and four air bases in the United States. Range is about 25 miles, can reach planes at 50,000 feet altitude. It can be "commanded" from the ground.

Army Corporal —Bombardment weapon for battlefield use. Can strike targets 50 to 100 miles distant. Can carry a nuclear warhead. A jam-proof missile, supersonic like the Nike, the Corporal cannot be balked once it is launched. It has been assigned to troops in Europe.

Air Force Matador —A 600 to 700-mile-an-hour surface-to - surface winged missile that flies about 650 miles. It, too, can deliver an atomic punch. Units are in Europe. The Matador is now being replaced with a version having greater range and an improved guidance system which resists electronic jamming.

Air Force Falcon—A small guided missile weighing about 100 pounds used against opposing aircraft. Interceptors can carry a number of these rockets under their wings. They are electronically fired and guided to the target.

Navy Regulus—A naval version of the Matador which can be carried by either surface vessels or submarines.

Navy Terrier— A needle nosed supersonic missile launched from surface vessels to knock down attacking aircraft. It rides a radar beam to the target and is accurate to about 20 miles.

Navy Sparrow—An air - to - air missile carried by aircraft to launch against enemy aircraft. Deadly at five miles.

Up Tail Pipe

Navy Sidewinder — The Navy's newest air-to-air missile can destroy enemy bombers anywhere from sea level to 50,000 feet. It homes in on the infra - red rays emitted from the exhaust of a jet aircraft or missile and destroys its target by slamming right up the tail pipe.

Navy Petrel—A guided missile launched by patrol planes against enemy vessels. The Petrel can be fired from well outside a ship's anti-aircraft defense, thus saving the pilot from hazards of anti-aircraft fire.

The Army's Redstone missile is not yet in combat units but may be soon. The missile, capable of carrying either nuclear or non-atomic warheads, is believed to have been fired about 200 miles.

Successors to these missiles and a batch of new types are coming along fast.

Three Killed in Crash Near Sharon

SHARON, Pa. (UP)— Three Pennsylvania men were killed Sunday in a head-on automobile collision on Route 62 just across the Ohio line.

Ohio Highway patrolmen identified the victims as John Dulci Jr., 32, Sharon, a driver; Edward Bruno, 26, Farrell, a passenger in Dulci's car, and Frank Carine, 19, also Sharon, the driver of the other vehicle.

Carine, patrolmen said, was driving in excess of the legal speed."

Prison Guard Is Accused of Smuggling Gun

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va. (UP)— State Penitentiary guard Vernal Thompson, 56, was to be arraigned today on charges involving an attempt to smuggle a revolver and ammunition to five "dangerous" life-term inmates.

Thompson was arrested Sunday by Marshall County Sheriff Herman C. Lass and Prison Warden E. H. Tucker after he left an unidentified woman's home in Benwood.

When arrested, Thompson had in his possession a package containing a revolver and five rounds of ammunition which authorities believe had been left at the Benwood residence to be picked up by the guard.

Warden Tucker said the plot came to light some three weeks ago in a rumor spread by the prison "grapevine", but "we didn't know how the weapon was to get to the convicts."

Guard Captain Gerald Hall found out that Thompson was to be the smuggler. A day and night check was immediately placed on Thompson.

Warden Tucker said Thompson revealed after his arrest that he was to get $100 for his part in the plot.

The five prisoners involved were termed the "most dangerous in the prison" by Warden Tucker. He said they had participated in a mass break at Moundsville in the fall of 1949 and are now in double security cells.

TO CONFER WITH IKE— Japanese Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi is shown at his favorite sport on a Tokyo golf course, shortly before leaving for a two-week visit to the United States. He will confer with President Eisenhower and other top U. S. Government leaders. Kishi is looking forward to a scheduled golf game with the Chief Executive.

Life Has Two Roads, Billy Graham Says

NEW YORK (UP)—Evangelist Billy Graham said Sunday night that life has only two roads and they lead to heaven or hell.

"The narrow road ends in eternal life," Graham said, "and the broad road leads to hell and destruction. There is no third road. It is either one or the other."

The North Carolina preacher, basing his sermon on Job 14, said that even "the American Indian talked about his happy hunting ground."

The whole world is out of balance, Graham said and "experience teaches us that there must be something after life."

He quoted Robert Ingersoll as saying "why do we fear that which we do not know?"

"Supposing there is no heaven and no hell. I would still follow Jesus Christ . . . but what a terrible thing to find there is a hell and that you've missed heaven . . . Christ taught there was life after death," he said.

He warned that "the Holy Spirit was sent into the world to keep you from being lost. If there is one chance in a thousand that there is a hell you better not play with it."

West Seeking Details On Red Disarmament

LONDON (UP)—The Western powers pressed Russia today for further details on the latest Soviet plan for suspension of atomic and hydrogen bomb tests.

Western representatives attending the "Big Five" disarmament talks wanted in particular to know just how much latitude the Russians would grant to the Western monitors who, under Russia's plan, would pass through the Iron Curtain to keep tabs on Soviet observance of nuclear test restrictions.

Over the weekend, such prominent laborites as Hugh Gaitskell and Aneurin Bevan urged the West to accept the Russian plan —if only for the purpose of calling the Kremlin's bluff.

At the same time, it was announced that U.S. State Department adviser Julius C. Holmes and a U.S. general whose name has not yet been announced will come here this week to allay Allied fears of an American "big two" deal with Russia.

The two U.S. officials apparently are being assigned as a check on "disarmament secretary" Harold E. Stassen, who has aroused Allied criticism by private talks with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister V. A. Zorin. Also attending the talks were representatives of Britain, Canada and France.

The new Soviet plan, unveiled Thursday by Zorin, proposes a two to three year suspension of tests by the United States, Britain and Russia—the three nations now producing nuclear weapons.

It would permit the stationing of Western observers on Soviet soil to insure Russian observance of the suspension.

The United State was believed willing at least to consider the Soviet terms, but it was not certain that Britain and France would agree to abandon their demand for a simultaneous halt in production of bomb ingredients.

A Great Leader Of Our Times

IT IS ALWAYS gratifying when a person who has served long and effectively in public life lives to experience some public appreciation of his efforts.

Sir Winston Churchill's career has been especially noteworthy in this respect. For a quarter of a century or more he has been recognized everywhere in the world as one of the great leaders of his time and of all time. It did not require a generation or two of historical research and reappraisal to establish his greatness and his worth.

Herbert Hoover, our former President, has lived long enough to know the regard which his vast contributions to his country and to humanity as a whole have won for him. And what is especially fortuitous in Mr. Hoover's case is that he has been here to witness the correction of the great wrong of which he was the victim in the 1932 election campaign. That campaign, of course, was the first in which the modern invention of the political smear was tried out — and with such astonishing success. Mr. Hoover, it will be recalled, was transformed for political purposes into a personification of the depression and his name made synonymous with human misfortune.

It was a brutal piece of business, that smear. And few of those who participated in it are proud of it. But it has been nothing short of divine justice that Mr. Hoover has lived to hear those hoots and jeers become expressions of respect and gratitude from his fellow citizens for his tireless labors for a better nation and a better world.

* * *

THE FOREGOING leads us to join in the testimonials for Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who has just completed 50 years of a busy and fruitful career in the field of international diplomacy.

We do not know for sure what history is going to say about Secretary Dulles. The record is full of brilliant achievements; and there are also some incidents which perhaps will have to be set down even now as errors. Moreover, Mr. Dulles, unlike the other personalities mentioned above, is still very much in the mainstream of current events. And Mr. Dulles's part in these cannot be appraised now.

But this need not prevent us from saying that his has been a marvellously rich life and one which bears the hallmarks of unselfish devotion to great ideals.

Unlike some of the older nations with which the United States is associated in world affairs, the U. S. has not yet had much of a tradition of public service as careers for especially gifted people. And not the least of Mr. Dulles's contributions, it seems to us, will be the example he has furnished of the great international lawyer who has given his country first call upon his knowledge, his skill and his strength.

It is a truism to say that these are stirring times in which we live. And one of the things that makes them so is the privilege of living them with men who seem to have been marked for their key roles. One of these surely is John Foster Dulles.

The USW Ruckus

LOOKING at the matter from the point of view of the rank-and-file, dues-paying member, it seems plain that something needs to be done to clear the atmosphere in the United Steelworkers union.

We have no means of knowing whether Donald C. Rarick, leader of the opposition to President David McDonald, has any basis for his repeated charges of irregularities or whether he is being irresponsible and self-serving.

But whichever the case may be, we doubt whether the cause of truth is satisfied by Mr. McDonald's merely repeating in public statements that: "There is no corruption in our union."

Whether or not a congressional committee is a satisfactory agency to resolve a situation like this is debatable. We do not like to see such committees embark on fishing expeditions, and probably the McClellan committee will want substantial verification of what Mr. Rarick has been saying before it authorizes a full-blown inquiry.

Furthermore, it is not a proper function of government to be settling disputes in private organizations, such as labor unions, if the disputes involve merely differences of opinion over policy. If the McDonald-Rarick business is nothing more than this, Congress should keep out of it.

Ideally, we believe the USW controversy should be resolved within the union itself by its own democratic processes. One of the best, of course, was the recent international election in which Mr. Rarick polled such a surprising, big vote against Mr. McDonald. This ballot was conducted on a rank-and-file basis, and it seems likely that this will disappear, not merely by the suppression of Mr. Rarick, but only by an increasing sense of participation by the members and decreasing domination by Mr. McDonald and his associates.

Merry-Go-Round—

Jap Premier To Talk with Eisenhower

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — For the first time in history, either before or after Pearl Harbor, a Japanese Premier meets this week with a President of the United States.

The man who sits down on one side of the desk commanded allied forces during the war. The man on the other side of the table was Minister of Commerce and the Interior in the Cabinet of Japan's war lord, General Tojo. For this he was arrested as a war criminal, but released when it was discovered that he had led a peace movement against Tojo in 1943, one year after Pearl Harbor.

Mr. Pearson

After that experience, Nobusuke Kishi said:

"When I found that I was not to be tried, I began to think of the rest of my life as a bonus to be spent wisely. I decided Japan must have real democracy and never again adopt dictatorship."

As Prime Minister, Kishi is endeavoring to live up to that promise. He is a tough, hard-working, fast-thinking politician, who believes in Japanese-American friendship, but also believes that Japan can't play second fiddle to any nation.

Ambassador Douglas MacArthur flew back to Washington in advance of the Premier to warn the White House that Kishi would raise such unpopular demands as the end of H-bomb tests in the Pacific and the return of Okinawa to Japan despite its importance to the USA as a military base, and would warn that Japan was resuming trade with Red China on a large scale.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, head of another nation defeated in war, talked tough to Eisenhower last month. Premier Kishi is expected to talk equally tough.

Guided Missile Secrecy

The secret of what happened to the Air Force guided missile Atlas when it mysteriously exploded off the Florida coast last week has caused a minor storm inside the Pentagon. The question is: Should the facts be released to the press?

Inside fact is that the Air Force was about to release them when it got orders from Murray Snyder, the former White House press aide, now Assistant Secretary of Defense, to keep quiet.

The facts which were suppressed are as follows: The Atlas did not explode from internal causes as reported by the press. It got into a shimmy and was deliberately destroyed by the ground safety officer for fear it would fly out of control. Shimmying can lead to sudden off-course deviation by a guided missile.

Nevertheless, the Air Force got some good information from the test it was about to explain the whole thing to the public when it was ordered by Snyder that nothing should be announced about any of the tests — by order of the President.

Secretary of the Air Force Douglas wants to change this ruling, and Secretary of Defense Wilson is reported leaning in his direction.

But word from Eisenhower is negative, so the news was suppressed.

Our Chickens Come Home

The reason why Canada can't dam the Columbia River to flow south to Puget Sound before it reaches the United States is one of the most tragic chapters in American conservation history.

The treaty of 1909 by which she completed was forced on Canada by the United States much against her will. Now it will permit one of the biggest bonanzas in the history of international waterways.

What happened was that by 1909 boundaries between Canada and the United States had been set by some of them by Theodore Roosevelt's "Big Stick." Teddy even demanded and got a slice of what is now the Alaskan panhandle, extending south along the Canadian coast, sealing off the northern British Columbia.

Because of American "Big Stick" diplomacy, Premier Laurent of Canada signed on a treaty by which disputes could be decided by international law, especially by a board between Canada and the United States. He proposed applying the Common Law of England that no man living beside a river could damage the flow to the detriment of those downstream.

But the United States was then using the Rio Grande flowing from the United States into Mexico. It wanted to be able to divert water from the Rio Grande before it reached Mexico. Therefore, Judson Harmon, Attorney General under Taft, contended that the United States had the right to divert the flow of the Rio Grande and every other international stream.

President Taft put up a bitter fight against the principle and precedent of international law imposing responsibility or obligation upon the United States," ruled Taft's Attorney General.

So Canada signed the treaty of 1909. Now under that treaty she can't use one drop she wants regarding the giant Columbia River before it reaches the U. S. border.

Note — British Columbia now proposes to dig a tunnel and divert the river to the Pacific coast through the Fraser River and all-Canadian territory. The pro-American Liberal government held back. The new Conservative government, less friendly, may support British Columbia.

From Washington—

Is Socialism Answer to Future?

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

President Eisenhower was overly cautious at his recent press conference when he was replying to the prediction — from Moscow of course — that the United States woube be a socialist country in fifty years.

Mr. Drummond

The President confined himself to one generalization and to one short-term forecast. He noted that the pressures to accept large-scale government control of our economy for "advantage" have always been present in the U. S. but have never prevailed. He predicted that any effort to socialize America would be up against a "terrible battle" during the next three and a half years of his Administration.

Now, obviously no one can say for sure what future American voters will do; they can do anything they want and conceivably they could be taken in by some crisis-panacea that could end up in a form of socialism they didn't expect and didn't want.

But the reason it seemed to me the President was excessively cautious is that the trend away from socialist ideology and socialist measures in many parts of the free world and in the satellite world has been marked in recent years.

What is significant is that socialism has not been working well where it has been tried and that competitive, private enterprise has been working outstandingly well where it has prevailed.

Some Evidence

Here is some of the evidence that socialism is losing support and that competitive, private enterprise is gaining support:

In the United States one of the most respected and articulate socialist thinkers, Norman Thomas, many times his party's Presidential candidate, is no longer advocating all-out socialism. He has warned against the dangers of all-powerful, centralized government and he has come to view with new respect the substantially well distributed high standard of living which capitalism is producing.

In Britain the nationalization of industry has been halted and the steel industry turned back to private ownership.

Of all the war-stricken nations West Germany has made the most signal and sustained recovery. It offers to all its neighbors in Europe an example of what a competitive, free enterprise economy can do for the prosperity of a nation and the welfare of its workers.

The prosperity of the West German Republic has been exerting a powerful impact upon German politics and upon the economic philosophy of the German labor movement which in the years following the War in Europe was largely socialistic in outlook.

But today the Social Democratic party, whose strength comes from German workers, has very largely turned from its long-held pro-socialist desire to nationalize German industry.

Two Factors

Two factors have greatly influenced the thinking of the German labor leaders. One is the positive accomplishments of competitive enterprise in the reconstruction of Germany. The other is the poor showing of nationalized industry in Britain which has disenchanted many German as well as British socialists.

When I was in Bonn last, Eric Ollenhauer, chairman of the Social Democratic party and Chancellor Adenauer's principal opponent in the September elections, told me that his party rejects nationalization as a practical measure.

There are numerous signs behind the Iron Curtain that socialism is not working well. The Hungarian workers didn't think it was. Tito stopped trying to communize the farmers and the Polish regime has dismantled 8,000 collective farms.

The fact that the United States and West Germany are two of the most productive and prosperous nations in the world is not accidental. Other countries have great natural resources and skilled labor force. But in the United States and West Germany a competitive, private economy, free from nationalized industry and inhibiting controls, is using its resources and its skills to the great boon of both labor and ownership.

On the record I would say that socialism is not the wave of the future.

Inflation Danger Can Be Serious in U. S.

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—Closer to home and pocket than nuclear fall-out or the effect of tobacco smoke on the human lung is that beautiful item, the United States dollar.

It is not pretty to contemplate the possibility of physical deformities among humans caused by nuclear fall-out. There is nothing attractive about lung cancer.

Mr. Wilson

That beautiful United States dollar is going to look as bad as either or both of the foregoing if the present trend of creeping inflation continues. Inflation is a college word which doesn't mean much to living Americans because they never have been up against what the word signifies.

Outruns Everything

The word signifies a situation in which money goes bad — goes so bad that shopkeepers don't want it, so bad that waiters prefer a cigaret to money as a tip, bad enough that a man with a pocketful of dollars might die of starvation while gazing into a food store window.

When inflation really gets going in a national economy it outruns everything. Not even the most generous employer with the fattest purse can raise his employes' salaries fast enough to provide a living wage. The first babies to whimper for food and finally to starve to death are the children of persons on fixed incomes. The first adults to go are pensioners and others whose incomes also are fixed.

Inflation is deadly stuff, like cancer and, maybe, more than fallout deformities. The inflation of currency is reflected in a steadily descending purchasing power of money. It can be a slow and gradual process as presently in the United States, or it can strike with snake suddenness after some national catastrophe, such as defeat in war.

Like A Snowball

Gradual inflation is like a down hill snowball. It picks up speed or momentum, and if it picks up enough it becomes uncontrolled inflation. That is the point of no return. Beyond that point lies immeasurable human suffering and absolute economic chaos.

There is an inflation snowball in the United States today and it is rolling down hill accumulating speed. The grade is not yet very steep and the point of no return still is some distance in the future just how far being a matter of considerable dispute.

The United Press reported from Washington on May 24 that the cost of living rose to another record high in April.

If that trend long continues the rate of inflation or reduction in the dollar's purchasing power may be expected to accelerate to 1 per cent, 2 per cent—even 10 per cent—a month. Penny by penny, the dollar's value would shrink until finally, a dollar would buy nothing at all.

At that point of no return the American way of life will have had it.

French Designers Turn To the Budget Shopper

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Two French designers, whose creations usually are extravagant in price, this fall for the first time will aim some of their designs for the budget shopper.

The two are Gabrielle (Coco) Chanel, who was tops in her field in the 1920s and 30s and in the last two years has made a spectacular comeback, and Christian Dior who began in the 1940s and never went away.

Gay Pauley

Chanel's first ready-to-wear group will be reproduced by Sacony. Dior has turned to the junior field for the first time, in a collection of suits, and daytime and after-five dresses for David Crystal. Both designers for the first time are using their labels in the mass production market.

Four Coordinated Costumes

Chanel, whose casual "look" affects most fall collections on Seventh Avenue, made four coordinated costumes for exact reproduction here.

Sacony said only an advance look at what the designer plans for her fall collection in Paris. Included are two suits—one with hip length jacket and four patch pockets, the other with cropped jacket banded at the waistline and featuring a stand-away collar. Both jackets, dresses and separates fit the body snugly in front but fall loosely at the back to give a long-waisted look.

The designer's love of warm, rich tones shows in the four colors she used for the group—Mexican pink, brown red, raspberry and deep peach. Chanel made the group in wool, silk chiffon and crepe. But they will be reproduced in celanese yarn fabrics. Price ranges around $11 for the blouses on up to $65 for suits.

Took Two Years

Crystal said it took two years of talks before Dior decided to enter the junior field. Now he will make three groups—summer, resort and spring, and fall.

Dior's collection is a direct opposite of Chanel's. It stresses the elegant with rich colors and many fabrics. He builds in the shape with petticoats and shows low cut necklines in the dressier clothes.

Most of the suits have short jackets standing away from the figure rather than clinging. The price range is $75 to $125.

Sea Fighting Is Reviewed

By UNITED PRESS

The image of a ship under full sail with its sides jetting cannon fire is a familiar one to American readers and moviegoers, epitomizing sea warfare before modern fleets of steel steamships became a reality.

It is rather startling to realize that the era of fighting sail actually lasted less than 300 years — from 1573 when the Dutch beat the Spanish in the first real action of sail-driven cannon, until about the time of the U. S. Civil War.

"Broadsides and Boarders" by Marvin H. Albert (Appleton-Century) reviews this brief but glorious period and the men who made it — the Dutch who launched it against tremendous odds, the British semi-pirates and generals-at-sea who carried it on, the fledgling Americans and the greatest fighter under sail, Horatio, Adm. Lord Nelson, who smashed the sea might of Napoleon.

The daring men who trusted their lives to cannonballs and canvas in the days when modern sea power was being born.

It is a record for the most part of incredible bravery with an occasional heaven of incomprehensible stupidity or cowardice. The old saying about "wooden ships and iron men" had more than a grain of truth.

Albert, whose interest in the sea dates from his days as a merchant-marine radio operator in World War II, has mastered his subject thoroughly enough to speak of historic admirals and great battles as though he knew them at first hand. Scholars of naval history may dispute Albert's conclusions on some points, but they can scarcely argue the effectiveness of his portrayal of

"Has Your Hair Lost Its Sparkle?"

By James V. Bonafed

HAS YOUR HAIR lost its sparkle? Is it dull, lifeless, frizzy, dry, brittle? Have you tried home remedies without success? Have you asked yourself, "Is there a lotion or a treatment that will revive my hair?" My answer to you is a capital YES!

•

First of all, what happens to your hair when it has been sunbroiled, over-bleached, wind dried, abused with faulty home permanents or just plain neglected? Let's try a one-minute experiment.

•

Take a piece of rope, clothesline or string, (which is made up of hundreds of strands), untwist the ends, see what happens? The strands separate and the rope or string has lost its strength and shape. Your hair is made up of strands just like the rope, except that in hair they are called Keratin chains. When your hair has been damaged and neglected, these Keratin chains separate and your hair becomes dry, frizzy, hard to handle, brittle and lifeless.

•

What can be done about it? A new type of treatment, one that will knit the strands (or Keratin chains) together, and not just coat the surface of your hair since they cannot penetrate it.

•

WELL THEN, what is the proper treatment to make your hair look alive and beautiful once more? A professional product available only to beauty salons and their patrons. Is it magic? Yes, in a way, the magic and wonder of hair research chemists who have recently developed, after years of testing, a professional formula known as a HAIR PHARMACEUTICAL that will knit these Keratin chains together. Just like it takes a doctor to prescribe specific drugs to make you well, it takes a professional with professional products to treat your hair, making it lovelier and healthy looking.

Maybe your hair isn't damaged or abused. Do you need these treatments? As an extra precaution you owe it to yourself and your hair to protect it now against the summer days ahead from sun-broiling and wind drying.

A hair conditioning treatment will brighten your hair with new lustre and life. Its natural color returns with new highlights. Gradually the neglected hair becomes easier to accept a permanent wave or a tint.

In fact, hair conditioning treatment is a must before any hair service. Your hair will hold its set better and longer. Drop in and see us this week or sooner if possible. Call us for an appointment. We can help you and your hair!

Are You Interested in Officiating?

If you're interested in becoming either a football or basketball official, now is the time to send in your application to the PIAA office in Harrisburg. Applicants must be 18 years of age . . . Incidentally the PIAA will stage its football exam on September 26, while the basketball exam will take place on November 14. These tests are difficult, but fair. At least 20 days prior to the examination dates, rules and case books will be mailed by the PIAA to applicants . . . Hereabouts, the "oldster" officials have proved more than willing to help the youngsters get started. So if you love the sport and feel you have the ability to officiate, don't hesitate to write the PIAA.

The city's Recreation Department has assembled a "picnic kit" again this summer. The kit, available for the asking, includes a softball bat, badminton rackets, birdies, rubber or steel horseshoes, volleyball and vollyball net. There is no charge, but users are naturally expected to return the equipment in good condition . . . By the way, the Recreation Department will also supply a list of both outdoor and indoor games upon request . . . The Baltimore Orioles will hold a tryout camp June 21-22 at the Brownsville High field. The tryout session will begin promptly at 9:30 a. m.

Scoreboard Not Used at Ninth Street

Our baseball man, Lou Kichinko, offers this comment: "It's a shame to let the fine scoreboard at Ninth Street Park go unused. Fans would really appreciate it if somebody made arrangements to get it back into operation." . . .Speaking of scoreboards, there's agitation to have a small one placed in right field at Forbes Field. The fans along the third base line complain they have to take their attention from the ball game in order to look at the huge scoreboard in deep left . . . PIAA officials have made it clear that Sunday practice in all sports is strictly forbidden. The issue was raised at a recent meeting of the PIAA and the response was unanimous.

Maybe it pays to resign. A few months back Charleroi Junior High football-basketball coach George Chacko submitted his resignation. The other night, the Charleroi School Board finally reacted by raising his football pay from $900 to $1100 and his cage salary from $500 to $700 . . . Chacko, incidentally, is one of the dilligent Junior High coaches hereabouts. He scouts all opponents and has molded a remarkable record . . . That new salary scale adopted at Charleroi must certainly make the Cougar athletic bosses the highest paid in the WPIAL.

He was instrumental in securing the state checker tournament for Monessen early next month . . . New U. S. Open Champ Started Golf Early

By OSCAR FRALEY

TOLEDO, Ohio (UP)—If junior had been a member at Winged Foot or Mamaroneck, N.Y., and had taken lessons from Claude, he'd lined up for him, don't get interested in that new job carry with him, pop.

He just might wind up as the U. S Open golf champion.

Those were two "ifaults" with a ing fellow named Dick Mayer id that's the lad who went out the Inverness inferno Sunday d polished off Carv Middlecoff seven shots in a playoff for coveted Open title.

Later on, Dick started to work Wall Street and was accounts stined to be a broker.

"But the market broke," he vealed, "and besides I was of running to it to get to k on time."

Dick Mayer

Dick Mayer Is New U. S. Open Champ

TOLEDO, Ohio (UP) — Handsome Dick Mayer finally made it — winning the U. S. Open golf championship to end what has been for the most part seven years of fairway frustration.

He beat Cary Middlecoff, the defending champion, on the tight, rolling Inverness course Sunday for the title and the $7,200 that goes with it by a whopping seven strokes—one of the most decisive playoff trampings in golf history.

Playing conservatively, but chipping and putting with accuracy, he shot a two-over-par 35-37 — 72 against Middlecoff's nine-over-par 38-41—79. It was one of the worst rounds Middlecoff, who was shooting for his third Open title, ever played.

Beat Out Demaret

On Saturday, Middlecoff sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the 18th green to tie Mayer at 282. Mayer dropped the same length putt on the same green to come in a stroke ahead of 47-year-old Jimmy Demaret, who thought he had won it all when he finished with 283.

So Sunday, the 34-year-old Mayer and the 36-year-old Middlecoff went at it head and head for 18 holes for the greatest title in golf.

It was obvious on the first hole that Middlecoff didn't have it. He sliced his drive into the rough, put his second on the back of the apron, chipped to within three feet and then missed the putt for a bogey five.

Mayer put his seven iron second to the apron, chipped to within two feet and sank it for his par. Mayer bogeyed the second hole when he drove in the rough while Middlecoff got his par four to even the match. But that was the end for Middlecoff.

"I kept thinking back to 1954 at Baltusrol," Mayer said. "I figured I had it won but anything can happen in this game."

Then he recalled that 18th at Baltusrol when he needed a par four to get a play-off shot at Jame-armed Ed Furgol. But his drive landed in an unplayable lie and he wound up with a seven, which dropped him down to third place.

"That was frustration, all right," the 5-foot, 11-inch 165-pounder said. "After that I started thinking that maybe this wasn't my business. But I stayed at it.

"Am I glad today that I never changed my mind."

In addition to the $7,200 which he picked up for first place, endorsements and special exhibitions will net him another $50,000 or more—and that's "the golfing jackpot."

VFW Wins First Half LL Crown

VFW clinched the first half title in the American Division of the Little League on Saturday by polishing off the Ravens, 10-3.

However the National Division race took a sharp turn over the weekend.

CIO moved to the top of the standings through an unusual set of circumstances. To begin with, the union boys whacked Legion, 14-4.

They also got a boost from a league decision which upheld a CIO protest filed after a 3-2 loss to Legion early in the season.

Infield Fly Rule

In that game, the umpires misinterpreted the infield fly rule in the fifth inning.

Because of that, the game will be replayed from the fifth inning with Legion in front, 2-1.

CIO now heads the standings with a 7-3 record. The Elks are second with a 7-4 slate.

In Saturday's game, CIO got a fine three-hit pitching performance from William Runfola. He fanned five and was in control all the way.

Buster Karenchak paced the union boys with a homer, double and single in four trips to the plate. Ralph Nuzzaci chipped in with a homer and single.

For CIO, Bill Hubans made the circuit tour.

Vets on Top

Over in the American Division, VFW clinched things by scoring seven runs in the final two innings to spank the Ravens, 10-3.

Dick Steele led the winners with a double and single. Skippy Stevenson had two singles.

John Pascarella led the Ravens with a pair of hits.

Pages won a suspended game from Park Service, 19-15. The tussle was resumed in the fourth inning with the score tied at 14-14.

Saturday's line scores follow:

Chicocca Picked In Bout Tonight

NEW YORK (UP) — Substitute Felix Chicoca of France is favored at 7-5 to beat welterweight Tony DeCola of Brooklyn tonight in a television 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena.

Chicoca, who dropped a decision to Jimmy Carter in a TV fight at Chicago Stadium on May 29, is substituting for Jimmy Archuleta of New York, who suffered a cut eye in training.

DeCola, 20, has won six straight bouts. He won 23 of his 31 bouts, lost 7 and drew 1.

Knockouts accounted for only two of Chicoca's 25 victories in 33 bouts. Chicoca never was topped by DeCola, who lasted once.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Flying Elbow

To bring the clubhead into the ball along an inside-outline for straight and powerful shots, the right elbow must be tucked in close to the body as the downswing begins.

If the right elbow gets out and away from your body, the only way the clubhead can be brought into the ball is along an outside-in line. That means the cut-across and the cut-across means the slice.

To keep that right elbow in close, start the swing with your elbows as close together as is comfortably possible. Point your elbow toward the watch pocket on which the watch pocket would be. In any case, the right elbow must stay inside the right hip throughout the swing.

Once the right elbow flies out and the clubhead cross the line, the downswing becomes inaccurate.

Martinez Meets Gavilan Tonight In Outdoor Bout

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UP) — Welterweight contender Vince Martinez and ex-champion Kid Gavilan meet outdoors tonight at Roosevelt Stadium in a return 10-round fight to settle the dispute over their February thriller.

Promoters Willie Gilzenberg and Babe Cunan expect about 9,000 fans and 35,000. The bout will not be televised.

Champion Carmen Basilio will be at the ringside, for he has been offered a guarantee of $105,000 to fight the winner in Jersey City, in case his proposed match with Sugar Ray Robinson blows up.

Martinez of Paterson, N.J., is favored at 14-5 because he is three years younger than the Cuban "Kid," 31. His 53-6-0 record includes 27 kayoes; Gavilan's 104-26-5 includes 28.

Vince, who is rated sixth by the NBA and seventh by Ring Magazine, won the referee's decision over unranked Gavilan at the Newark, N.J., Armory, Feb. 26. There are no ring judges in New Jersey.

The fans booed the decision, and a large pool of writers favored Gavilan, 11-4-2. Angry Martinez and his handlers prevailed upon the promoters to take "an unbiased poll" three days later, and that surprised no one by favoring the Jersey contender.

Old Pro and Bonus Baby Boost Cardinals Near Top of NL Race

By MILTON RICHMAN

An old pro and a kid just three weeks out of high school are panning out to be a bullpen bonanza for the pennant-minded St Louis Cardinals.

The old pro is 33-year-old Hoyt Wilhelm and the youngster fresh out of the classroom is 18-year-old bonus beauty Von McDaniel, who between them, pitched the Cardinals within 1½ games of the National League lead by beating Brooklyn twice Sunday, 7-6 and 8-4.

McDaniel, appearing in only his second major league game, checked the Dodgers on one hit and struck out five batters in four innings to gain his first major league victory in the opener. Wilhelm hurled four hitless innings in the nightcap to save Willard Schmidt's triumph and give the Cards their 11th victory in the last 13 games.

The Cards overcame a 6-1 deficit to win the opener on Ken Boyer's seventh-inning homer after Roy Campanella and Stan Musial each had hit three-run homers. St. Louis shelled Johnny Podres from the mound in the nightcap with a four-run outburst in the sixth.

Braves Split Twin Bill

League-leading Milwaukee split a double-header with Philadelphia, winning the opener, 3-2, but dropping the nightcap, 1-0, despite Lew Burdette's one-hit pitching. The Giants edged the Redlegs, 4-3, and the Cubs defeated the Pirates, 4-1, with the nightcap being called at 4-4 in the seventh inning because of Pennsylvania's Sunday curfew.

The Chicago White Sox stretched their American League lead to 3½ games by beating Washington twice, 4-2 and 8-6; the Yankees defeated the Athletics, 8-6, in 10 innings; Cleveland swept two games from Baltimore, 4-3 and 5-1, and Detroit beat Boston, 2-1, in 10 innings.

Frank Torre's eighth-inning double drove in the winning run for the Braves in the opener. Juan Pizarro went the route for Milwaukee even though he was licked for homers by Willie Jones and Granny Hamner. Southpaw Curt Simmons was the winner in the finale.

Don Mueller's pinch three-run homer in the eighth off Tom Acker helped Marv Grissom of the Giants to victory in a relief role against the Redlegs, who frittered away a 3-0 lead.

Jim Bolger, Ernie Banks and Walt Moryn each hit homers in the Cubs' triumph over the Pirates and Banks also homered in the second game which was not completed. Don Kaiser was the winner and Luis Arroyo the loser. The second game will be completed July 16 at the point it was suspended.

Wilson Wins Seventh

Jim Rivera and Minnie Minoso each hit two-run homers for the White Sox to help Jim Wilson notch his seventh triumph in the first game. Relief pitcher Dixie Howell then hit two homers in the nightcap as the White Sox battled back from a 6-0 deficit to win with a four-run rally in the eighth. Roy Sievers also homered.

Yankee reliever Bob Grim was credited with his seventh victory when the Bronx Bombers rallied for three runs in the 10th. Homers by Gil McDougald and Yogi Berra gave the Yanks an early lead, but Billy Martin, playing his first game for the A's, put them ahead, 4-3, in the eighth. The Yanks went ahead again in the ninth and Hal Smith sent the game into extra innings with a homer in the bottom of the ninth.

Roger Maris' single with the bases full off Connie Johnson in the eighth inning gave the Indians their opening game victory, while homers by Al Smith ad Dick Williams beat the Orioles in the nightcap.

Harvey Kuenn's 10th inning homer and Jim Bunning's three-hit pitching carried Detroit to its victory over Boston.

Martin Has No Grudges After Trade to A's

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP) — D. Martin, second baseman [illegible] of the New York Yankees to the Kansas City Athletics, said he bore no grudges from the trade and backed up his words with a single and a homer.

Martin and outfielder Harry Simpson switched uniforms in Sunday's Yankees-Athletics' game due to an eight-player deal the clubs made just before the deadline Saturday night.

"Sure, I hated to leave the Yankees," Martin said. "But I'll [illegible] for the A's. [illegible] a good deal for [illegible]."

However, he came through with a single for the Yanks in the 10th and scored in a three-run outburst that gave the Yankees an 8-6 win.

Little Comment

Simpson had little comment to make on the trade other than to say he thought it was a "good deal" for both clubs and "of course I'm happy to be with the Yankees."

The deal sent Simpson, pitcher Ryne Duren and outfielder Jim Pisoni to the Yanks, and Kansas City's second baseman Mel Graff to the Yankees' farm club at Richmond on option. The Yankees farmed Duren and Pisoni to Denver.

Besides Martin, the Yankees gave an outfielder Bob Martyn from Richmond, pitcher Ralph Terry and outfielder Woody Held to Denver.

Martin scored three runs in Sunday's game from his homer in the seventh which gave the A's a momentary 4-3 lead, a single in the fourth, and from a fielder's choice in the 10th.

Professional Sports in Jeopardy

By TOM NELSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—Three congressmen warned today that unless Congress intervenes, a recent Supreme Court decision will create chaos in professional sports and perhaps kill pro football.

The warnings were sounded by Rep. John W. Byrnes (R-Wis.), Oren Harris (D-Ark.) and Kenneth Keating (R-N.Y.) at the opening of hearings by a House Judiciary Subcommittee on whether professional sports should be subject to federal anti-trust laws.

Baseball now is exempt from the laws under a ruling handed down by the Supreme Court in 1922 and reaffirmed four years ago. But last Feb. 26, the court refused in a 6-to-3 ruling to extend the same exemption to professional football.

Several Bills Introduced

Soon after that decision, several bills were introduced in Congress aimed at putting all professional sports on the same footing, but proposing conflicting means to that end. The varying measures would either subject all sports to anti-trust regulation, free them all from government restraints or take a "middle-of-the-road" approach and permit only partial anti-trust control.

Byrnes, whose hometown of Green Bay, Wis., supports the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, pleaded before the subcommittee for his "middle-of-the-road" bill, which would give football, hockey and basketball the same anti-trust exemption baseball now enjoys. But it would permit "purely business" aspects of the sports, like concession and broadcasting rights, to be regulated.

Byrnes said that as a result of the Supreme Court's February decision, pro football's draft and reserve systems "are in jeopardy." The draft is the system for distributing new players among the teams. The reserve clause in football guarantees a team that a player will stay on its roster for at least two years.

Need The System

Byrnes said the sport "simply cannot operate successfully" without these two features.

Harris is chairman of the House Commerce Committee and sponsor of a bill to grant football, basketball, and hockey full exemption from anti-trust laws.

He told a reporter in advance of today's hearing that if the Justice Department begins regulating football under the anti-trust laws "they'll kill and destroy this great American sport."

He urged that "the government take its nose out of this business and let the public and the industry work out their own problems."

House to Pass Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (UP)— House supporters of President Eisenhower's civil rights bill today expected to fend off last-ditch Southern opposition and pass the controversial measure.

Both supporters and opponents believed it would be passed by nightfall, despite Southern attempts to weaken the legislation by offering eight or 10 more amendments.

Southerners staked their main hope on securing a roll call vote on the jury trial amendment. The House already has rejected the amendment on a 199-167 non-record vote.

Civil rights advocates expressed confidence they had the votes to turn back all the amendments. The jury trial provision would guarantee a trial before a jury instead of a judge to persons accused of violating federal court orders to head off possible denials of the ballot or other rights.

Other congressional news:

Atomic: The Senate attempted to complete action today on the treaty implementing President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan. Under it the United States would join an international organization for pooling nuclear materials to be used for peaceful purposes. Major opposition collapsed after a provision was included that the United States could withdraw if the Senate opposed any changes in the treaty's charter.

Rackets: Sen. Pat McNamara (D-Mich.) has charged that the Senate Rackets Committee will not look as thoroughly into management corruption as into labor racketeering. He said the committee has evidence of several cases of business leaders being involved in corruption but that these concerned less "sensationalism" than charges against union officials.

Economics: Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) proposes to conduct a full-scale Senate investigation into the nation's financial system. Byrd is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee which will begin hearings Tuesday into the matter.

China: Sen. J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.), second-ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, believes it is "quite possible" that Red China will break with Russia. He also said eventual U.S. recognition of Red China is "inevitable."

Girl Captures Police Station at Gunpoint

NEWTON, N.J. (UP)—Police today posted an around-the-clock guard over the jail cell of a petite 20-year-old girl who earlier captured a police station at gun point.

The girl, Vivian Masters, accomplished what veteran gunmen would tremble to think about. She stands 5-feet, 5-inches.

Miss Masters, brooding about a $40 traffic fine she had been forced to pay, invaded the station early Sunday determined to get even with police.

Brandishing a 12-guage shotgun, the dungaree-clad girl held patrolman William L. Knoll captive for about 10 minutes, the gun pointed straight at the policeman's head.

Another Annie Oakley

Knoll had reason to believe that if the shotgun went off, it would hit its mark. Miss Masters, a mink rancher, has a widespread reputation as a marksman and bags a deer almost every year.

A radio call came in from a patrol car. The girl gumman told Knoll to ignore it.

Knoll finally persuaded her that if he didn't answer the call the reporting policemen would become suspicious.

"Signal 24," Knoll droned into the police radio.

That was eventually Miss Masters' undoing. "Signal 24" in policemen's language means "come to headquarters immediately."

Patrolmen Anthony Dyda and Clarence Friedland rushed to the station. Dyda went in, leaving Friedland outside.

Miss Masters covered Dyda with the gun and disarmed him. She told Dyda to bring in Patrolman Charles Young, who was the real target of her wrath. It was Young who arrested her a month ago for driving through a stop signal.

Friedland heard Miss Masters order Dyda to drop his gun. He yelled at her. As she swung around, Knoll and Dyda jumped her and wrenched loose the shotgun.

They remembered the last time Miss Masters appeared at the station house. She turned the place upside down and rammed through a glass door, gashing her hand.

GOP in Drive for Influence in South

ATLANTA (UP)—Southern Republicans talked uncouragingly today about spreading the GOP influence in the South but a Democratic leader said they are just "whistling in the dark."

Spurred on by an "operation Dixie," sponsored by the Republican National Committee, GOP leaders worked on an organizing drive at the precinct level to build up registrations in hopes of getting at least within shouting distance of the Democrats.

When the registration books closed in Louisiana before the presidential election last fall, there were 1,043,275 registered Democrats and 9,811 Republicans. Yet, President Eisenhower carried Louisiana against Democrat Adlai Stevenson by a comfortable margin.

This ironic situation points up the complexities of the GOP problem.

"Those states that went Republican in the south didn't go Republican but went for Eisenhower," Georgia Democratic chairman John Sammons Bell said. "The Republicans are whistling in the dark if they hope to make headway in the Southern states."

Camille Gravel, Louisiana Democratic committeeman, believes "the President's popularity is on the wane."

But in Florida the Democrats are genuinely concerned. State Democratic Chairman James Milligan said a big influx of Northerners is adding steadily to Republican strength in the Sunshine States.

Estimates GOP Strength

Florida Republican Chairman G Harold Alexander estimated present GOP strength in the state at 170,000, although Eisenhower beat Stevenson by almost that many votes in Florida last November.

Precinct-level organization strength of the Republicans in Florida has multiplied six times since 1950 and the GOP holds local offices in eight counties. The national party is helping the cause there with money.

"The days of Southern Republicans paddling their own canoes are gone," Alexander said. "There is no doubt we'll get the help we need now."

A big Republican registration drive is under way in New Orleans, center of GOP strength in Louisiana. In Tennessee, GOP Chairman Guy L. Smith said his party "will have candidates for Congress running in six out of nine congressional districts" next year plus candidates for governor and for the Senate seat held by Democratic Sen. Albert Gore.

No specific program of recruiting new members has been undertaken in Georgia, primarily because Georgia voters do not register by party.

Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn said the party will make a "great effort" to carry out President Eisenhower's goal of running a GOP candidate in every Southern congressional district next year but that "stone age laws" might thwart the attempt.

"We have run into some stone age law in some states such as Georgia where it is virtually impossible to get a Republican on the ticket," Alcorn said. He predicted, however, that the GOP can expect a net gain of eight House seats over the present nine they hold in the South.

Leaders of both parties in Virginia agree that despite Eisenhower victories there in 1952 and 1956 the Republicans are still too weak to topple the entrenched Democratic organization of Sen Harry Byrd in a state election. A Republican polled 45 per cent of the vote in a 1953 governorship election, however, and party leaders see a good chance of building Virginia into a two-party state.

Southern conservatism and reluctance to be bound by strict party rules are generally regarded as aids to the GOP organizing drive.

Airline Pilot Suffers Fatal Attack in Air

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (UP)—A pilot of a Trans World Airlines Super-Constellation suffered a fatal heart attack while operating the huge aircraft with 29 passengers aboard Saturday night.

His co-pilot took over control of the plane from the dying pilot and made an emergency landing.

The plane was enroute from Chicago to Denver, Colo., when Captain Horton Hale, 53, of New Hyde Park, N.Y., was stricken.

Both men were in the pilot's cabin at dual controls.

The co-pilot, Capt. L. A. Girard, made a safe landing after Hale's attack. Another TWA pilot, Capt. Tom Evans, who was riding as a passenger on the flight, went to the cockpit to help remove Hale from his seat.

Youth Climbs Fence; Is Drowning Victim

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Paul Icenhour, 17, Moon Twp., drowned Saturday in a private lake that was marked off-limits to swimmers.

Police said the teen-ager and three companions climbed a fence to get to the Dependable Drive-in fishing lake near the Greater Pittsburgh Airport.

Icenhour drowned while his friends stood by, apparently unaware, until too late, of what was happening.

Fisherman Is Saved After Five Days Adrift

MONTEREY, Calif. (UP)—A 35-year-old salmon fisherman who survived a five-day ordeal in a drifting boat considered today that two strikes and he might have been out.

Instead, the first of Jack Coats' remaining two matches struck fire to a distress signal, and he was saved.

"I was in a bad way," Coats said of his close call with death. He had drifted for more than 200 miles, from Mendocino, Calif., to Monterey, in his disabled 36-foot boat, the Gojac, while the Coast Guard searched for him. He had no food except a few vitamin pills, a mouldy piece of bread left over from last season's fishing and a few quarts of brackish water—also left over from last season.

Finally Coats sighted the U.S. destroyer George Anderson Sunday morning.

"I was down to two matches, but I was ready," Coats said. "I had soaked my shirt with gasoline and I had tied it to a stick.

"When I saw the lights, coming down there in the dark, I knew it was now or never."

The shift blazed brightly and the Anderson came alongside. But Coats refused to abandon ship—the source of his livelihood. The Anderson notified the coast Guard which sent a cutter to tow Coats and his boat to port.

Retirement Plan to Top All Others

By ALFRED LEECH

CHICAGO (UP)—Sam Trapani, 40, is just an average shop worker, but he has $12,000 in savings. And at the age of 58 he'll have at least $60,000.

Steve Tarasuk, 37, another ship worker, has $14,631 in savings. Roy Bringelson, 38, a production supervisor, has saved $23,707.

All are employes of the House of Vision, a Midwestern optical firm which prides itself on its retirement plan.

Big for its industry, the firm operates in five Midwestern states. But it is no industrial giant. It employes 320 persons and qualifies as a "small business."

Nevertheless, it retirement plan top many of the largest ones in its benefits to the average worker.

Bernard Spero, who founded the firm in 1924, started the employes' trust fund in 1938 with the idea that his employes were entitled to share in the profits.

Spero put up 200 of his own shares of stock in the company to start the trust fund, and offered an annual company contribution of 20 per cent of the firm's profits.

The employes contribute 2 per cent of their pay, and these contributions now total $148,968. The company has contributed 3.6 times this amount, of $554,178.

Milton Spero, Bernard's brother and treasurer of the company, believes the plan might serve as a model for small business generally.

"Eventually small business will have to come to something like this," he said. "The plan has been a tremendous benefit, both to the employes and the company.

"We have very loyal workers, and a very low turnover in personnel."

The trust's assets today total $1,652,021. The 227 members hold more than $7,000.

Average Is Misleading

But Milton Spero says the "average" is misleading, because older employes have benefited far more. For example, he said, one man joined the firm in 1939 as a messenger boy at $3 a week. Now an executive, he has more than $10,000 to his credit and in another 20 years he could have $150,000.

Trapani, who walks on crutches, has a "sit down" job fitting eyeglass lenses into plastic frames. His contribution to the fund has totaled $800 and his share is $12,609.

"It' a great thing," said Trapani, who has five children.

About 50 employes have bought homes financed through the plan. Most of them agree they "couldn't have bought a house" without the plan.

Ruth Reigner, an attactive, trim office worker, has contributed $596 to the fund since 1949 and has a balance of $7,736.

Singie, she showed her passbook to some fellow employes and got "three or four marriage proposals."

"They were impressed by my big, fat figure," she said.

Three Killed; Hit by Lightning On Golf Course

SCRANTON, Pa. (UP) —Three men were killed instantly and three others were critically injured Sunday when struck by a bolt of lightning on a golf course here.

The dead were: Dr. Horace D. Birchard, 69, a dentist; John W. Whitmore, 58, an insurance executive, and Frederick De Wilde, 62, co-owner of a Dunmore iron works. All were from Scranton.

A fourth golfer, Christian Robinson, 49, principal of the North Scranton Junior High School was admitted to Scranton State Hospital in critical condition with burns and shock. Two caddies, John Marshalek, 44, of Throop, and John Fabian, 47, of Dickson City, were also admitted to the hospital in critical condition.

The tragedy occurred under a tree at the Country Club of Scranton on golf course during a heavy rain storm.

Robinson is the brother of Lackawanna County Judge Otto P. Robinson.

Lackawanna County Coroner Dr. Michael Yevics said the three men were killed instantly.

French Seize Initiative in Arab Clash

ALGIERS (UP)—French forces, using planes, bombs and rockets, seized the initiative in strife-torn Algeria over the week end, killing an estimated 310 Arabs in the heaviest fighting of the 2½-year-old guerrilla war.

Fourteen French soldiers were killed and 57 Frenchmen and four Arabs were wounded in a series of clashes extending across Algeria from the Tunisian border almost to Morocco.

The biggest clash occurred Saturday near Cheria, 12 miles from the Tunisian border, where some 1,500 French paratroops and infantry attacked a band of 250 guerrillas who had been sighted slipping across the border.

Casualties totalled more than 260—295 Arabs and 14 Frenchmen killed, 40 Frenchmen and dozens of Arabs wounded. Seven uninjured guerrillas were taken prisoner.

Business Activity To Remain Steady in Steel, Experts Predict

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP) —The level of the nation's business activity will remain steady for at least two or three months, Steel Magazine said today.

The current flurry of new orders reported by many companies is not expected to produce any appreciable break in the straight-line movement until late in the third quarter of 1957, according to the publication.

The metalworking weekly said later expected upturns in production will follow completion of summer vacations and automakers' preparations for new model introductions.

At present, Steel said, any immediate increase in new orders will only result in an increase in backlogs.

Most manufacturers were reported satisfied with present operating rates. Reasons include a reduction in the costly overtime of last year's boom and no necessity to push machinery to the breaking point.

The national operating rate of the steel industry for week ending June 16 continued its upward trend. The magazine reported mills were operating at 88.5 per cent of rated capacity, a gain of one-half point over the preveding week. Yield amounted to 2,265,149 net tons.

Current upward movements in scrap prices will tend to keep blast furnaces at high operating rates, the magazine predicted. During the week ended June 12, the scrap price composite rose for the seventh consecutive week to $55.67 per gross ton. This was an increase of $3.34 over the preceding week.

"Exports of the nation's metalworking industry were a whopping 64 per cent above those of the same period in 1956," the publication pointed out. "If the rate continues, look for the exports to exceed 20 billion dollars this year," which would amount to 1 billion dollars over last year's all - time high.

The industry's sales for the first four months abroad was reported at $3,600,000,000, compared with $2,200,000,000 in the comparable period of 1956. Metalworking shipments account for half the total exporting sums, the magazine explained.

Lad Drowns at Centre County Dam

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (UP)—Larry Wance, 9, Aaronsburg, Pa., drowned near Pope Paddy Dam about 15 miles west of here Sunday when he wandered away from his parents.

Centre County authorities said the boy stepped off a sand bar into deep water. His body was recovered after a one-hour search.

McDonald Says Workers Hurting Steel Merger

PITTSBURGH (UP) — United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald says the Sheet Metal Workers Union is endangering the AFL-CIO merger by continuing a boycott against an Ohio firm.

McDonald, in a letter to AFL-CIO president George Meany, declared "it appears the Sheet Metal Workers (union) is engaged in a deliberate attempt to flount the decision of the AFL-CIO executive council."

The Sheet Metal Workers added McDonald, also is attempting, "in the bargain, to hoodwink you as president of the AFL-CIO, into believing they are complying with the council's decision."

The Steelworkers president said the rival union's activities have jeopardized the economic existence of the Burt Co. which manufacturers roof-type ventilators. He asserted the company has lost millions of dollars.

McDonald, whose union organized the Burt employes in 1945, said the Sheetworkers have been carrying on the boycott by telling Burt customers its products are made by non-union labor and have refused to instal the products.

Pro-West Wins Lebanon Election; 30 Are Killed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UP) — Lebanon's pro-Western government won a second sweeping victory in Sunday parliamentary elections marred by a family election feud in which 30 persons were killed and dozens wounded.

The shooting took place in the village of Zogharta in north Lebanon. The elections there do not take place until next Sunday, and authorities could find no direct connection with Sunday's voting.

Returns reaching Beirut today from the mountainous area which voted showed government candidates won 19 of the 20 parliament seats at stake. A similar victory was won by the government a week ago.

The only opposition candidate elected Sunday admits that President Camille Chamoun's acceptance of the Eisenhower Doctrine was a wise move.

The voting is for 66 seats in the one-house parliament. So far of the 42 seats filled only three deputies are known to favor a policy of neutralism similar to that favored by Syria and Egypt. The remaining deputies will be elected next Sunday.

The battle in Zogharta began when members of the rival Fragiyeh and Darweish families, or clans, engaged in a heated debate in the street and decided to shoot it out. The two families, the largest in the town, have been feuding for generations.

The army rushed several hundred troops to the scene and arrested members of both factions, but 18 persons lay dead in the village street and another 12 died later in hospitals.

Hundreds Hear Old Hymn in 'Church in Vale'

NASHUA, Iowa (UP) — More than 1,000 persons jammed the "Little Brown Church in the Vale" to hear a troupe of old vaudevillians sing again the hymn that made the church famous.

The occasion Sunday was the 100th anniversary of the composition of the hymn. The singers were four veterans of the Weatherwax Brothers troupe, who travelled the old Lyceum Circuit from 1909 to 1921.

The Rev. Glenn Utterback, pastor of the church, said the quartet was in "marvelous voice."

The song was written by Dr. William S. Pitt, a Wisconsin dentist, who came across the dale by accident in 1857 while en route through Iowa to visit his bride-to-be.

The sight of the little brown church in its beautiful setting so impressed Pitt that he composed the song in its memory.

Police Ordered to Search for Weeds

NEW YORK (UP)—Police were ordered Sunday to take an interest in horticulture.

Chief Inspector Thomas A. Nielson issued the order for all men in blue to watch vacant lots, farm plots, yards, roofs and even window boxes for marijuana plants which sometimes grow wild and sometimes are cultivated by narcotics addicts.

During the historic Berlin airlift, which started in 1948 when Russians blocked land and water routes to Germany's divided capital, Allied planes ferried 2,325,500 tons of food and fuel to the city. The total, says the National Geographic Society, averaged more than a ton of supplies for each inhabitant of West Berlin.

U.S. Uses Yugoslavia As Tool Against Reds

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States has provided Communist Yugoslavia with more than $1,250,000,000 in economic and military aid in an effort to show Communist nations that it pays to break away from Moscow domination.

Communist Poland this year has decided to follow the Yugoslav example—on a cautious basis. As a result, the Poles have a promise of 95 million dollars in American aid, much of which will be repaid eventually. More millions will be provided later to Poland to build it up as a second beacon of hope behind the Iron Curtain.

Strictly Bsuiness

The United States is helping the Tito Communist regime of Yugoslavia and the Gomulka Communist regime of Poland for strictly business reasons. The long-range aim is to encourage national independence moves in all satelites in a peaceful way.

Officials cite the example of how American help to Yugoslavia during the last nine years attracted the Poles when they eased their ties with Moscow.

Yugoslav diplomats in Belgrade and other capitals got a string of inquiries from Polish officials. They asked a lot of questions about Tito's relations with the United States after he broke away from Soviet domination.

The Poles wanted to know whether the United States would provide assistance without demanding an overthrow of Communism? Would the United States follow through on economic aid? And the Poles sought information on Yugoslavia's experience in the field of trade, tourism and other contacts with the free world.

Could Do Business

Yugoslavia acknowledged that its relations with the United States had not been entirely calm But the overall report was that the Poles undoubtedly could do business with the United States as long as they eased their relationship with Moscow.

Officials don't say outright that the United State's aim is to weed Communism out of Yugoslavia, Poland and other countries. Initially, they think it is more important to concentrate on helping satellites to restore and to maintain independence. Once they have regained their independence, officials believe, the Eastern European states will drift away from Communism.

12-year-old Has Her Own TV Network Show

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP)—Well, it's finally come down to this. TV is not only aiming its wares at the 12-year-old mind, it's now employing the 12-year-old mind.

Prime exhibit is Susan Heinkel, who at the mellow age of 12, stars in her own network TV show each Saturday—which is more than you can say for Sid Caesar or Jackie Gleason.

Not only that, Susie ad libs her entire show, which is also more than you can say for Sid Caesar or Jackie Gleason.

Susie, brown-eyed, poised and bonnie, actually steers six TV shows each week. Five of them are Monday through Friday local shots in Chicago. The sixth, launched by CBS-TV about two months ago, is a half-hour affair geared for the yo-yo set.

"None of the shows are really any work at all. They're fun. We have a ball at the studio because everyone is a little off his rocker," said Susie with enthusiasm.

"In fact, one of the fellows said you had to take a sanity test to get on the show—if you failed, you were hired."

"Susan's Show," the title of her network show, is a comfortable potpourri of sense and nonsense. There is a talking table named "Pegasus" and an orchestra led by Caesar P. Penguin. The instrumentalists include such whimsical bric-a-brack as Calvin the Fox (clarinet), Bruce the Gopher (drummer) and Wolfgang the Bear (violin).

There is a real dog named "Rusty" and there is Susie who herds this curious crew through the by-ways of a thin plot each week.

"We don't have any script," said Susie, "and most of the time we have no idea of what we're going to say. We have a kind of story given to us before the show and we run through it once before we go on.

"It's not corny," said Susie primly. "It's not one of those things where you talk baby talk to kids. I know that's not the way I'd like someone to talk to me. No kid likes a show that's too mushy—you know, one of those shows where all they do is build blocks like 'Ding Dong School.'"

Susie, who'll be CBS property until she's 18, receives $2 allowance each week and the rest of her salary goes into a trust fund.

"TV? I like it. And I watch it. But not too much. I like funny shows and stuff. To me, TV is a kind of pasttime when you have nothing else to do on a rainy day."

Poorer School Districts May Get More Money

HARRISBURG (PU)—The state Senate has moved to increase state aid for school districts over the next two years to $31,750,000 and give poorer school districts a better financial break.

Sen. Paul L. Wagner (R-Schuylkill), chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said the reimbursement provisions of the House approved measure were reshuffled to add about one million dollars to what the schools would receive in state aid for the next two years.

The poorer school districts were given an increase of $130 per teaching unit over what was given them in the version of the bill adopted by the House. The per teaching unit reimbursement for Pittsburgh was cut back $17 to $2,700 per unit while that for Philadelphia was upped $5 from $2,733 to $2,738.

The maximum subsidy per teaching unit for the 1957-58 school year would be increased to $5,800—$200 more than in the House version. The millage or local effort rate was increased from the House's 4 1-6 to 4⅜.

Sen. George J. Sarraf (D-Allegheny) said the Senate move, if concurred in by the House, will cost Pittsburgh schools $42,500 in state aid in second-year subsidies.

"But it is still a much better break for Pittburgh than the original bill," Sarraf said.

Representatives of the larger comunities, including Pittsburgh and Philadelphia forced the House to revise the bill to give the larger communities a larger share of the subsidy before it was passed by the House. The new changes may have to go to a conference committee compromise if they adopt the same attitude on the Senate revisions.

Animal Habit Studied To Aid Heart Surgery

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

We can learn a lot from animals.

One thing medical science certainly would like to know is how some of them can hibernate and go without food for months.

Although this secret has eluded medical investigators for more than a century, recent probing has turned up a couple of hopeful clues.

Knowledge of what makes hibernation possible would prove of special valve in the field of heart surgery.

Surgeons already are using hypothermia, or artificial hibernation, in certain types of heart operations. One surgical team recently completed more than 130 such cardiac operations.

In hypothermia, the patient's body is cooled. This reduces the rate of metabolism and therefore the body's need for oxygen.

Under such conditions it's possible to interrupt the heart's blood circulation for as long as nine minutes while it is opened for necessary repairs.

As the cooled patient is gradually warmed, the slowed heart resumes its normal beat, about 70 beats per minute.

Some of the questions surgeons would like answered are:

Upon what chemical does the heart draw for this increased heart action? Could high energy phosphates be used to restore action if necessary?

Maybe the work of doctors will help us find out.

For example, Dr. W. G. Bigelow of the University of Toronto has found a brown-colored fat in hibernating animals.

An extract of this material would appear to improve the ability of test animals to tolerate low body temperatures, but the work is not yet completed.

Dr. Marilyn L. Zimny, of Louisiana State University Medical School, has noted that as far as animals are concerned, the starch stored in liver and cardiac muscle provides the extra surge of energy needed for arousal from hibernation.

All of these facts might prove very valuable in our search for better operating methods. Only time will tell.

Dairy Income Up

By UNITED PRESS

Pennsylvania dairy farmers had their highest cash income and their highest percentage of total farm income in 21 years in 1956, according to state agriculture secretary William L. Henning.

Records of the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service showed that total farm cash income from dairy products amounted to nearly 280-million dollars. This was 38 per cent of the total farm income.

The previous high figure was 278-million dollars in 1948. The previous high percentage was 42 per cent recorded in 1934.

Value of Pennsylvania milk last year reached a high of more than 263-million dollars, the second highest on record and 14-million dollars more than 1955. The average price per hundred pounds of milk received by farmers rose from $4.51 in 1955 to $4.60 in 1956.

Pennsylvania will be one of 35 in the nation's commercial wheat producing states voting Thursday on whether they want wheat marketing quotas continued in 1958.

A commercial wheat producing state is one that has a total state allotment of 25,000 acres or more.

A Penn State university agricultural economist said a vote of two-thirds in favor of continued quotas would keep the quotas in effect next year and would ensure a price support of 75 per cent of parity, about $1.78 per bushel.

The economist said if continued quotas are voted down, the price support level would be dropped to 50 per cent of parity, or about $1.18 per bushel.

Thief Nabbed in Chase

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (UP)—A gunman robbed a service station in Rogersville, of $1,300 Sunday night, but crashed his get-away car into Waynesburg police headquarters after a seven-mile chase.

The thief, Thomas Thart, 32, Hallbrook RD 1, was taken inside the station and booked.

Mrs. Charles Sellers said Thart entered the service station she operates with her husband at about 11:10 p.m., pointed a .22 caliber rifle at her and demanded the receipts. Mrs. Sellers told police she handed over the cash box.

As the thief drove off, Mrs. Sellers called her son, Bill, 18, and another boy, Dale Milligan, 16, who gave chase in their car while Sellers telephoned state police. A police radio car, cruising by, joined in the pursuit along Route 18, towards Waynesburg.

With sirens blaring, the race continued the seven miles to Waynesburg. At the borough hall, an officer fired a single shot, which nicked Thart in the ear. He lost control of his vehicle and it crashed in front of borough headquarters.

Red Infiltration into U. S. Industry Denied

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL

NEW YORK (UP) — Top financial experts here said today it is "too far-fetched" to believe the Russians could ever acquire enough stock to influence American big business.

However, they agreed that while small companies face such a danger, there is no concrete evidence the Russians have been active in the stock market.

The Senate Internal Security subcommittee has been looking into the potential Communist penetration of American industry through intermediaries in Switzerland and other European countries.

Dr. Gabriel C. Kreykes, a member of the Babson Institute faculty at Wellesley, Mass., told the subcommittee last week that the Russians have perfected the Nazi technique of inflating foreign economies and that unconstituted U.S. firms may be in "very, very great" danger.

Danger To Small Firms

Most experts agreed that the smaller the firm the greater the potential danger of its being taken over through surreptitious stock purchases.

However, they added, when it comes to the giants of industry the story is different.

"For one thing," a leading banker pointed out, "big companies are owned by thousands of people and the stock is well diversified."

"It would be quite a task acquiring a block of stock in one of the nation's industrial giants big enough to control the management."

Acquiring such a block of stock would be an extremely expensive proposition, too. Russia would have to acquire at least 10 per cent of a company's outstanding shares before it could even hope to influence corporate policy, experts said.

Stock Hard To Get

A 10 per cent interest in General Motors Corp., at present market prices, would cost more than $1,200,000,000. The same size block in Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) would run in the neighborhood of $1,300,000,000.

Under present margin requirements, established by the Federal Reserve Board, anybody buying stock must put up 70 per cent of the total cost in cold, hard cash. In this country that means dollars.

Having the money is one thing; getting the stock is another problem, according to Wall Street spokesmen.

The possibility of the Russians buying into American industry was underlined by the role Swiss banks played in some recent proxy fights.

The U.S. Treasury has reported that an average of $500,000 a week has been deposited in foreign bank accounts in New York City for the past several years. The accounts are identified only by code numbers registered with Swiss banks. Banks in Switzerland are not required to list the actual identity of account holders.

Court May Act On School Rule

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court may act today on a challenge to Louisiana's pupil assignment law, passed to circumvent the court's ban on segregated public schools.

Two lower courts have ruled against the statute, but New Orleans school authorities appealed to the Supreme Court. The issue is one of 25 school cases still before the court.

The high court originally had been scheduled to adjourn for the summer on June 3. But its heavy workload is keeping the justices working overtime. They now are expected to finish a week from today.
